

Humorous Department

Specific Designation.—The professor of English literature was endeavoring to send a telegram via the telephone route. He had secured the attention of the clerk, and when asked to whom he intended to send the message he began:

"Mr. A."
"Yes."
"M."
"Yes."
"P."
"Did you say B?"

"No, no—P—stands for philtre, you know."
"Oh, you mean P."
"Not at all. Mean P—P, for pneumatic."
"Huh?"

"Can't you understand? I distinctly said P. P. standing for pneumatic."
"What?"

"Confound you, P. P. P. as in philtres."
"You go to blazes!"

"And the receiver was indignantly hanging up."

The Place.—Bouditch was a most respected resident of our suburb, and made friends with everybody. As he was putting up for the borough council he made a tour of the various municipal establishments, including the local police station. The superintendent had treated him with great courtesy and had shown him everything of interest, on which Bouditch dilated when he reached home.

Next day he was taking his little son for a ride on the trolley car, which was crowded with local residents. As the car was passing the police station a shrill voice suddenly cried:

"Ooo, dad! Is that the police station where the policemen took you last night?"

Every person on the car turned to stare at Bouditch—and he was not elected to the council—Chicago News.

How to Carry Water in Sieve.—"Patience and perseverance will accomplish all things," was the favorite saying of an old farmer.

He had just made this remark in a train one day on the way to market when a pompous individual in the next seat turned to him and said:

"Nonsense, sir! I can tell you many things which neither patience nor perseverance can accomplish."

"Perhaps you can," said the farmer, "but I have never yet come across one thing."

"Well, then, I'll tell you one, Mr. Patience and perseverance will enable you to carry water in a sieve!"

"Certainly."

"I would like to know how."

"Simply by waiting patiently for the water to freeze,"—Topeka State Journal.

No Wishbone Necessary.—They were dining out at a restaurant. "You see," he explained, as he showed her the wishbone, "you take hold here. Then we must both make a wish and pull, and when it breaks the one who has the biggest part of it will have his or her wish granted."

"But I don't know what to wish for," she protested.

"Oh, you can think of something."

"I can't think of anything," she said. "I can't think of anything I want very much."

"Well, I'll wish for you," he exclaimed.

"Will you, really?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Well, then, there's no use fooling with the old wishbone," she interrupted with a glad smile. "You can have me!"—Wisconsin State Journal.

Amazing Beginning.—A minister home from the trenches has been recounting his experiences among the Scotch regiments, and one of the interesting stories he tells is of a wounded Jock whom he found rather depressed, and on being asked whether he would like to dictate a letter home, he assented.

Thereupon the minister brought a table with writing materials to his bedside. However, he found Jock tongue-tied and unable to begin, so much so that the person said after a while:

"Come along now, I'm in a hurry. We must make a start."

"What will I say?"

No reply.

"Will I begin, 'My dear wife?'"

"Yes," said Jock, "pit that damn. That'll amuse her!"—London Tit-Bits.

A Canadian Soldier in the Region of Vimy Ridge—A swanking English officer who according to good Canadian custom, he did not salute. The officer stopped him.

"Look here, my man," he said, "don't you know I'm an officer? Why don't you salute?"

"Oh," said the Canadian, "are you an officer?"

"Yes," replied the officer, and then noticing for the first time that the man was a Canadian, he added with annoyance: "Oh, you're a Canadian, aren't you? Well, do you know that you Canadians give us more trouble than the whole rest of the English army put together?"

"Yes," replied the Canadian, with a slow smile. "That's what Fritz thinks, too."

Why He Fired in the Air.—An incident came into the office to tell of an incident he had just heard from a correspondent with the A. E. F. in France. It related to an American officer who had the misfortune to offend a French civilian, and who was challenged to fight a duel. As the challenged party, the American had the choice of weapons, and he chose Colt automatics.

The parties met at the appointed time, related the narrator, "and the seconds placed their principals in position. But when the word was given, the American fired in the air."

"Ah," we exclaimed enthusiastically. "That was magnificent! Was it not?"

"It was not," disagreed our informant. "You see, his opponent was climbing up a high tree at the time."

What do you think of the army as far as you have gone? inquired a sergeant of a newly arrived recruit at camp.

"I may like it after a while but just now I think there is too much drilling and fusing around between meals," was the reply.

The Cat—A Japanese schoolboy was told to write a short composition on the cat. After deep thought he handed this in:

"The cat is little cat. When first she sees a rat she illuminate her eye—Puck."

GENERAL NEWS.

Items of Interest Gathered From Various Sources.

A Paris dispatch says that the British fighting force in France now aggregates 2,000,000 men.

Loans made by the United States to its allies now total $5,991,550,000 and are continuing to pile up at the rate of $400,000,000 monthly.

Wireless dispatches received at London tell of an epidemic of cholera, due to food shortage, in Petrograd, with hundreds of new cases and a hundred deaths a day.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels, in an interview at Atlantic City, N. J., last week, predicted that the United States would be "bone dry" by January 1, 1919.

The National Security League has proposed a fusion of Democrats and Republicans in the twelfth New York congressional district in an effort to defeat Representative Meyer London, Socialist.

A dispatch by way of Rome, says that Kaiser Wilhelm has fallen a victim to Spanish influenza, now so prevalent in the German army. Several members of the emperor's family are said to be victims of the malady.

Corporal Everett Buckley of Kilmarnock, Ill., an aviator in the French service, captured by the Germans at Verdun in September last, and since a prisoner of the Huns, has made his escape and reached Zurich, Switzerland.

Fifteen alleged "conscientious objectors" were last week sent from Camp Meade, Maryland, to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, pending disposition of their cases by the war department. The lunch will probably be put to work on farms.

Five American airplanes, which recently went on a bombing expedition over German territory, have failed to return, according to a report by Gen. Pershing. The Germans also report the capture of five American flyers who were trying to bomb Coblenz.

Fourteen hundred and eighty-one women were added to the working forces of the Pennsylvania railroad in June. The number of women now employed by the Pennsylvania road and positions formerly filled by men, and exclusive of office workers, totals 8,354.

Unable to agree on a candidate to present to the national convention at Saratoga on July 23, the committee of 42 New York up-state Democrats will present the names of several men to the convention for selection of a candidate. The name of W. H. Hearst is not in the list.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg has issued a call for a million more soldiers. Recruits are being taken from the factories, and vacancies are being filled by prisoners, foreigners and ex-changed prisoners of war, contrary to all agreements. Recruits of 16, 17 and 18 are being called out for the coming drive on the western front.

The German army has declared officially that the American soldiers "are poisonous soldiers, and the stuff remarkable." Regardless of the stuff the Kaiser's propaganda bureau feeds to the German people and to neutrals, about our soldiers not being able to fight for their own side, the German army has compiled its own estimate, which looks forward to finding the Americans "formidable adversaries." This estimate is set forth in an official German report found on a captured American.

The report not only speaks respectfully of the nerve and bravery of the American soldiers, but also confesses inability of the Huns to get any information from captured Americans.

TURN TO BOWDITCH
Book by Salem Man, Long Dead, Has Become War Factor.

No American of today is exercising so potent an influence in the country's present extraordinary development in seagoing as Nathaniel Bowditch, who has been in his grave for more than eighty years, and whose name is unrecognized by millions of his fellow men who follow the rise and decline of the "best sellers" among books may be surprised to know that Bowditch was the author of one of the best selling books ever produced, which has run through hundreds of editions, in all civilized languages, has been selling steadily for more than a hundred years, and since the great war began has been in greater demand than ever.

This book is known as the "American Practical Navigator." It is the oldest of every kind that sells the Seven Seas, and is familiarly known to sailors the world over as "Bowditch," or "Bowditch's Epitome."

"With America's entry into the war, the demand for Bowditch's 'Navigator' became so great that a special edition of the book was published to meet it, by the United States hydrographic office, notwithstanding that editions had been as recently issued as in 1916, and also in 1914. For a time it was difficult to obtain a copy of the 'Navigator.' Since the appearance of the 1917 edition, however, all demands for the book can be met.

The increased demand for the book was caused chiefly by the stimulus given the study of navigation among young Americans by the training service of the United States shipping board, which is schooling hundreds of young men to serve as officers on the ships of the new merchant marine.

Bowditch was called by his contemporaries "an intellectual prodigy." He has since been termed "The Ocean Pathfinder." On receipt of the news of his death in 1836, vessels in the chief ports of the world half-masted their flags. His book was then said by one eulogist to be "in practical utility second to no work of man ever published."

Of the personality of the man who achieved this great distinction very little is recalled today, in spite of the vital influence of his work in the present development of his country.

He was born in the old shipping town of Salem, Mass., in 1773. His people were poor, and he was obliged to leave school when but twelve, to serve in a ship chandler's shop.

There, while selling rope and marring-spikes, the youth fell in with men from far voyages. One was an old sailor, whose tales of the sea and navigation, Algebra so fascinated the boy he "could not sleep after a first glance at it."

It chanced that about this time a privateer came into Salem with the booty of a cruise that included a library of philosophical works, the property of Dr. Richard Kirwan, an Irish scientist, taken from a freighter captured off the Irish coast.

The books were sold at auction, and bought by Salem citizens as the nucleus of a library. Young Bowditch had access to them, read them eagerly, and copied most of them for future use.

When twenty-two, Bowditch made his first voyage to sea, as captain's clerk on a Salem ship. He sailed nine years in all, one voyage being on the Astrea, the first American ship to visit Manila harbor.

Every man in the Astrea's crew soon learned they had a genius among them. Bowditch looked the scholar and devoted many hours a day to study. He made every man aboard a navigator, and it was said, each of them "could work a lunar observation as well as Sir Isaac Newton."

When not studying young Bowditch paced the deck in deep thought. At such times nobody spoke to him, knowing that in due course he would dash into his cabin to set down the results of his concentration, as he rarely failed to do.

It is related that one day the ship was attacked by a privateer, and Bowditch was assigned to pass powder from the magazine. The gun was not so powerful, and the powder keg was working out a difficult problem on his slate.

On arriving in Boston harbor from a voyage in 1802, Bowditch attended the commencement at Harvard college and was surprised to find himself named for an honorary degree as bachelor of arts, his work as an authority on navigation having won him
